New Sales Director for Commercial and Industrial Sector at Vortice UK

Vortice, who have recently seen a restructure of the UK division with newly appointed General Manager, Stephen Smith, have further strengthened their sales structure with the appointment of Mark Stevens as Sales Director to head the Industrial and Commercial area of the business.

Mark has been in the industrial HVAC sector for over 40 years, has a wealth of experience in specifying air handling units and specialises in bespoke applications such as healthcare, pharmaceutical and manufacturing requirements.

Vortice's complete service approach has a real focus on compliance, reliability, and expertise; with the customer having complete peace of mind in the product specification, including the supporting control and accessory packages on offer.

Commenting on the role, Mark said, "Supporting our customers is our priority, and with Vortice's expansive product portfolio, we're able to satisfy many bespoke industrial applications. In addition, the team here at Vortice will ensure all onsite requirements are seamlessly managed. The full design software enables us to provide very detailed technical data sheets giving all product specifications."
